

ESTABLISHMENT OF BRISTOL TOWNSHIP COLLEGE ASSURED

"Junior Annapolis" is Arranged For Under Terms of Trust Estate

THE McKEE FUNDS

Will Directs College Be Built On 66-Acre Tract Along The Delaware

Establishment of a college in Bristol township, heralded as virtually a "Junior Annapolis" is assured under terms of a trust estate created by the late Colonel John McKee, who died in 1902.

The $772,500 trust estate is now available for establishment of such a college, and for other charitable purposes designated. This is revealed in the third accounting made by Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, succeeding trustee, which was filed in Orphans' Court, Philadelphia, on Saturday.

It is directed by the will that the college be built on a Bucks County tract of 66 acres fronting on the Delaware River, at College Wharf and Bristol roads, Bristol township, at a cost of not more than $100,000 "to accommodate at least 200 poor male orphans, both white and Negro, born in Philadelphia."

The accounting was filed by Gerald Ronon, Philadelphia attorney, because of the death of McKee's last surviving grandchild, Dr. Henry McKee, on December 29, 1946, and shows a balance of $650,000 personally and real estate appraised at more than $122,500.

Colonel McKee, a Negro veteran of the Civil War, left the residue of his estate to certain annuitants and to erect and establish upon death of all his children and grandchildren living at the time of his death, "Colonel John McKee's College," near Bristol, Bucks county, and a Catholic church rectory, school house and convent at McKee City, N. J., where he owned more than 4000 acres. McKee City was named for him.

The will provides "all pupils shall be taught a thorough naval education, similar to that taught in the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and in the U. S. Naval War College and Torpedo School (Newport, R. I.) my desire being that the

Scout Finance Campaign Making Good Progress

Returns to date in the annual finance campaign of the Boy Scouts, Bucks County Council, total five times the amount contributed over the same period last year, council president Francis P. Kemmerer of Sellersville revealed today.

In making public this report, Mr. Kemmerer announced that the campaign will be extended beyond October 15th, the original closing date, to allow additional time for workers to report.

With substantial reports just beginning to trickle in to the Doylestown office, Mr. Kemmerer expressed satisfaction with progress in the drive.

"The fine public support is a tribute to the program of Scouting in Bucks County which, among other things, saw nearly 100% of the troops participating in camping this summer," the council president commented.

Standings among the seven districts, based on partial incomplete reports, are as follows: Lower Bucks, $2,003.05; Lenape, $1,479.20; Delaware Valley, $858.50; Tohickon, $453.50; West Bucks, $380; Perkiomen, $326.50; and Delaware River, $184.

Dr. Walker Will Attend Veterinary Convention

Information and new facts regarding the health of domestic animals and poultry are to be presented and discussed by veterinarians of Pennsylvania and neighboring states at the 65th annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Veterinary Medical Association at the Penn-Harris Hotel, Harrisburg.

Dr. John W. Walker, who is connected with the University of Pennsylvania School of Animal Pathology, at Emille, will attend the convention October 15-17. He is chairman of the mastitis committee.

Among other things the veterinarians are discussing the increasingly important role in public health being played by veterinary medicine. Aside from the care of sick and injured animals "the most important functions of the veterinary profession are the protection of the livestock industry on which the life of the nation depends and the protection of human beings against those diseases that are peculiar to animals but which are communicable to man."

GREEN LIGHT FOR REDS!

Perhaps no great public question of law, more vital to the endurance of the American nation, has ever been decided by a more flimsy tissue of legal hairsplitting than was issued by the National Labor Relations Board to defend its decision to protect the Communists in the labor movement.

The weakness of the Board's argument lies in a very simple fact. It had made up its mind in advance—or received its orders from the White House—about how the decision was to be made; and simply dragged together the best case it could to back up an indefensible ruling.

Omitted from any discussion in the Board's presentation of its interpretation of the Taft-Hartley Act's anti-Communist provisions was any mention whatsoever of two important points.

First, the overruled Counsel was the Board's official interpreting agent. When the majority opinion stated, as it did, that "No one can say, although some have said, that Congress surely meant one thing or surely meant the other," the Board brushed aside the fact that Congress had set up a man to tell the Board exactly that—a lawyer to instruct the Board (as he had done) on the meaning of the Act.

Second, that the Counsel, in ruling on the meaning of the anti-Communist provisions, was exercising what the law describes as "final authority" to interpret the law; and that the Board, in overruling him, was not merely, as a group of laymen, overruling their lawyer in a point of law, but flying directly into the face of the provisions of the Act in so doing.

The strained efforts of the Board to justify an act which was illegal, improper and wholly arbitrary, led it into devious paths of legal reasoning.

It adopted the position, for example, that because Congress had not debated the specific clause in question, the Board therefore was entitled to put any construction whatsoever on the words, no matter how clearly the words themselves set forth their intention.

It relied on the equally novel statement that Congress "when legislating on a special subject, is deemed to have used words in the sense in which they are commonly understood by those who deal daily with that subject." This is, of course, preposterous. Under any concept of law, words mean what they are understood to mean by the dictionary—not by a handful of weasel-worded bureaucrats who might, on their own, at any time decide that "black" means "white."

PHILLIPS MILL WILL HAVE "VARIED" SHOW

Annual Exhibition of Artists Heralded As a "Vital" One

OPEN UNTIL OCT. 26

NEW HOPE, Oct. 10.—The annual exhibition at Phillips Mill this year is so varied and vital that it will go down in New Hope history as an event of major importance. The gallery is open daily from one to six p. m., and Sundays, 12 to six, through October 26th.

In the show is found a wedding trove of many outlooks and trends of expression to be found in any alive and active art center. The future looks exceptionally bright for art in this locality. The realists, romanticists, expressionists and abstractionists are bedded snugly side by side without conflict—even enhancing each other.

A beautiful, stately abstract entitled "Tritheism" by Richard Crist hangs beside an ultra realistic still life of gourds, "Hercules' Club" by John Sharp, painted in the textural tradition of William Harnett. Each enhances the other in color, texture, and composition.

On another wall hangs a vigorous, brilliant expressionistic painting by Walter E. Baum which is

Former Starkey Worker Is Granted A Parole

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 10.—John Henry Fleming, 19, former Starkey Farms worker, who pleaded guilty in court, Tuesday, to taking money which his brother stole from another worker on the farm, was granted a parole by Judge Boyer.

The defendant, who couldn't read or write, was sentenced to serve not less than three nor more than 23 months on a burglary and larceny charge. Warden Earl D. Handy described him as an excellent prisoner and worker. His mother had sent him enroute to return to his home at Greenville, North Carolina.

"Did you write and ask your mother for the carfare?" Judge Boyer asked. "No, sub, I can't write," said the youth.

British Reaffirm Intention to Withdraw Troops

London.—The British Government reaffirmed today its intention to withdraw troops from Palestine despite the reported massing of Arab military forces along the borders of the Holy Land.

A spokesman for the Foreign Office, confronted with reports from Cairo and Beirut, Syria, to the effect that at least 10,000 armed Arab League scouts have taken up positions on the frontiers, said that no official confirmation has been received.

He pointed out that Britain still feels it is the responsibility of the Jews and Arabs in Palestine to come to an agreement on the future of the country.

Gov. Dewey Says Feeding of Europe is Coupled With Obligations Here

Ithaca, N. Y.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey told the nation today that the necessity of feeding starving people in Europe is coupled with "a prior and binding obligation to see that no American is poorly fed as a bitter result of thoughtless or badly planned generosity on our part."

In a coast to coast broadcast from Cornell University, Dewey declared that the health and vigor of the American people can be maintained in the face of food shortages and spiraling prices, but that they must be shown the way.

Some observers read an indirect thrust at the Truman food program into Dewey's assertion that:

"Pleasant or vague generalities will not do the job. You and I must know exactly what we need to do. We can then proceed to do it."

Bristol Township Couple, Wed 26 Years, Air Woes in Court

THE SCHMITT CASE

Roger Farnsworth Ordered To Pay Support Order and Arrearages

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 10.—Married for 26 years and residents of Bucks county for nine years, a Bristol township couple, Emil and Anna Schmitt, who aired their marital difficulties before Judge Calvin S. Boyer, Tuesday, agreed on one thing—"that it would take more than 26 years to tell the court everything."

Judge Boyer, who said, "I wish oratory would solve these problems," directed the 46-year-old carpenter husband to pay the costs of prosecution and continued the case until December 8.

A World War I veteran, Emil Schmitt, 46, testified that they had three sons in the service and that telephone bills amounted to hundreds of dollars a month. "One of the boys called his mother to ask her to send him $5 and the telephone bill amounted to $9," said the father.

Judge Boyer, who informed the mother she was partially guilty of mismanagement, if only half these things were true, said: "Your sons had better use pen and ink and paper to show their love and affection unless you can afford to pay the bills."

The defendant-husband related how he came home late for his supper and had "to eat words, not only food." His wife testified he took his hand, swept the food and dishes off the table and through the screen door to the porch!

GERM WARFARE

The atom bomb, most persons will agree, is the most horrible weapon ever used by man. But there is one weapon, still unused, which may be even worse. The possibilities of atomic warfare are limited at present by the small supply of radioactive materials and by the difficulty of producing them. Each bomb affects only a few square miles.

But there is no limit to the myriad possibilities of germ warfare.

Both sides were ready to use germ warfare in self-defense in World War II. The fact that it was actually never used is no assurance that it will not be. Its potentialities have been developed greatly in the last few years, and there is no record of a terrible weapon which has not been used in war sooner or later. The only real protection against germ warfare, as against the atom bomb, is to eliminate war.

A great deal of the talk about germ warfare has been in the rumor class. But now the American Association of Scientific Workers has come out with a warning to the UN Atomic Energy Commission which is based on inside knowledge.

The association urges the commission to put germ warfare on its agenda at once, and to give it equal importance with atomic warfare.

There are plenty of incurable diseases available for use in war. Take psittacosis for instance. This virus disease, commonly known as "parrot fever," has a high mortality rate. One drop of the concentrated virus, the association warns, is enough to infect 1,000,000,000 persons.

Bombs containing such deadly poisons would be cheap and easy to make. A pint of the stuff could be dropped on every large city in the world at less cost than one atom bomb. Once started, it would spread.

In keeping with longer skirts women's hair styles are lower. Everything seems to be coming down except prices.

Industrial use of atomic energy is now said to be 40 years away, with war probably quicker on the trigger.

Military leaders want a great deal more money out of Congress, but this doesn't belong in the category of news.

Green Light for Reds!

The importance of the meaning of words, of course, is at the crux of any debate on whether the law is being followed or perverted. The law calls for anti-Communist affidavits from local unions and from their affiliated "national or international labor organizations." The specific question on which the interpretation turns is what "national" means in this sense. The Counsel said it means what it says. The Board says "national" doesn't mean "national"—but something else it doesn't make clear just what.

The complete folly of the Board's argument about the failure of "national" to mean "national" is clearly displayed right in its own statement of the ruling:

"We accordingly conclude that Congress could not have deliberately intended NATIONAL or international labor organization . . . to include the two great NATIONAL federals within its meaning."

Another subtle but most amazing argument is slyly introduced in the separate opinion which joined with the majority opinion, when it was set forth that:

"Implicit in all the declarations of policy and provisions of the Act is the idea that industrial peace will be more likely achieved by having employers and employees using the 'orderly and peaceful procedures' provided therein, rather than being left to tests of their own economic strength."

What this was intended to mean, precisely, is open to question. But no one who reads it closely will escape the opinion that it practically says: "Whenever labor union bosses decide to fight against enforcement of a provision of this or any other law, the way to obtain 'labor peace' is to surrender to these labor bosses, regardless of consequences to the government or to the American people."

Those who rejoiced at the Board's victory in overruling its Counsel, aside from the Communists who thus are given the green light to go ahead tearing down the American Government from within the labor movement, largely did so on the grounds of expediency.

Their argument is simple, but fallacious. They have reasoned thus: that because the national affiliates of the local unions—the AFL and CIO national bodies, specifically—have refused to present anti-Communist affidavits for their officers, the local unions were deprived of all chance to gain the benefits of the Taft-Hartley Act, no matter how fully they had purged the communists from their own ranks.

With this premise, they argued that men like John L. Lewis, leader of the AFL fight to cripple the anti-Communist provisions of the Act, were made into dictators over the labor front. They also argued that it was unsound reasoning to believe that Congress really meant to pass any provision which led into such a deadlock.

Apologists on the outside, and the Board itself in its own reasoning, have fully accepted the idea that the local unions had no recourse if their nationals refused to submit the anti-Communist affidavits and on the strength of that assumption the conclusion that there was a deadlock in the Act is sufficiently logical.

But the assumption is unsound. The locals do have another recourse. They can and should withdraw their affiliation with national and international labor organizations which are unwilling to forewear Communism and purge the Communists. They should be forced to do so if they won't do it willingly.

They not only can do so, but some already have. The newspapers which carried the accounts of the Labor Board decision, for example, also carried a story of the withdrawal of Local 349, United Retail, Wholesale and Dental Service Employees from its Parent CIO union because of "Communist influence and control."

The whole Taft-Hartley Act shines with the intention of Congress to smoke the Communists out of the labor movement. What better approach to that goal could there be than forcing the local unions to decide between coming under the benefits of the Act, and continuing their affiliation with national and international labor organizations contaminated with Communism?

Yet this recourse under the law is wholly disregarded by the Board in its feeble and specious arguments backing up their decision to give the Communists a free hand in all save the brief list of officers of the frequently obscure and unimportant local unions!

How Stalin must laugh!
We invent the Truman plan to fight Communism with arms, and the Marshall Plan to fight it with money—then we open wide the doors to power over our own government through an absurd, illogical and tragic decision not to enforce the laws which would root Communism out of the labor movement on our home-front!

PASTEL STRIPES

Pastel striped novelty cotton by Hops. Skillman is used for this brightly young junior dress, brightened by the wide dust ruffle at the hem. The dress has a cut out applied fabric bow at the waist, small pearl buttons to the skirt, and a full all-around gathered skirt that falls from a set-in hem.

come under the classification of portrait with the exception of the very expressive and monumental figure piece "Mother" by Charles Rudy and the abstracted "Fish" by John Charry, who also shows a sensitive head entitled "Child." Harry Rosin has a massive head of Ben Snyder which recalls those strong Roman male portraits; beside this he shows a delicate head of his daughter "Tory." Another fine head is by Robert Pippenger of "Mary Follman" and Virginia Clarke shows a sensitive portrait.

The water colors are hung in the small gallery No. 2 and make a most effective showing. Outstanding items are Ben Solowey's "Symphony" and "Tulips and Lilacs," two papers by Raulph Rye, Harry Leith-Ross "The Old Manor," M. Elizabeth Price's "Christmas Window," and papers by Emma M. Stow, Whitney Seymour, Jr., Paul Darrow, Jeannette Rosenberger, Paul Froelich, and Clarence H. Carter.

In the three galleries the committee has placed on exhibition 115 pieces, larger space being gained by the renovation of gallery No. 3 downstairs. There are fifty painters and six sculptors represented. The gallery is open daily from 1 to 6 and on Sunday from 12 to 6, Sept. 27th through October 26th.

Body of Bristol Boy Due With War Dead

Honda Knot steamed slowly into U. S. waters within sight of the Golden Gate.

Aboard the funeral vessel as it arrived inside the sea boundaries were 328 fallen heroes, the sounds of battle forever behind them.

A naval honor escort met the Honda Knot to accompany it through the Golden Gate and 48 planes went out to circle in salute to her "passengers" being borne into San Francisco Bay.

Throughout America flags flew at half staff as the nation paid homage to the returning heroes in observances symbolic of the debt of gratitude owed the more than 228,000 American World War II dead from all corners of the world.

Goheen, who was 20 at the time of his demise, met death on December 29, 1945, in the line of duty in an elevator accident aboard the "Chepocket" at Pearl Harbor, T. H.

The young man, who had graduated from Bristol high school in June, 1943, entered the U. S. Naval Reserve that month.

BABIES ARRIVE

A girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brophy, Cleveland street, in Harriman Hospital on Tuesday.

A daughter was born on Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart, of Edgely. Mother and child are doing nicely in Harriman Hospital.

RECIPES

Cream of Potato Soup, Supreme

4 pared, medium, raw white potatoes
1/4 cup minced onion
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 teaspoons salt

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
Dash cayenne
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3 cups milk
2 oz. grated Swiss or process American cheddar cheese (1/2 cup).

Cook potatoes in 1 inch boiling, salted water, covered, until tender. Drain. Meanwhile, saute onion in 2 tablespoons butter over low heat until golden brown and tender, stirring often. Mash potatoes well; add onion and next 7 ingredients. Slowly stir in milk. Heat over low heat, while stirring, until hot enough to serve. Sprinkle with cheese. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

ATTENTION HUNTERS

Hunting season will soon be here. Don't forget your faithful Hunting Pal, your dog. Give him the best of everything; which means cedar kennel bedding. We have the best rippled shreds of white virgin cedar, fresh from the cedar marshlands, strong in aroma. Makes a warm, clean, vermin-resistant bedding. Stops Doggy Odor.

Sportsmen's Briefs

By JOE ELBERSON

Season opens . . . one-half hour before sunrise this morning two different migratory birds became legal game in Pennsylvania, when the season on doves and woodcock opened for a two-week period.

Although there are but limited numbers of both of these birds in this vicinity there were no doubt quite a few gunners out in search of them.

Daily bag limit on woodcock has been set at four, while ten doves may be taken in one day. Although both of these birds come under Federal jurisdiction no waterfowl (duck) stamp is required. Hunting is legal from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset daily.

Last shoot . . . the fourth and final shoot in the current 4-club blue rock matches will be held this Sunday afternoon over the trap of the Newtown Rod & Gun Club, in Newtown.

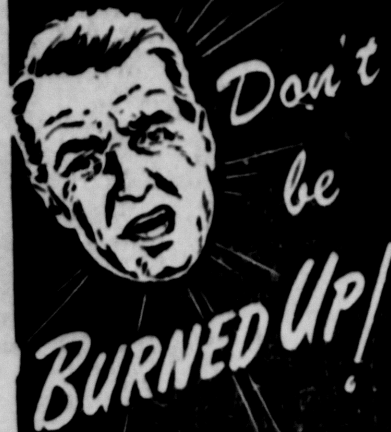

Edgely is leading the clubs with an 84 point lead, with Bristol, Newtown and Tru-Sport following in the order named.

When final scores are tallied Sunday the club championship will have been decided and two fine trophies will be awarded, one to the individual who has the highest score for the four shoots, and the other to the club who has the high team score.

Meeting . . . next Tuesday, October 14, a big quarterly meeting of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association will be held in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Radcliffe and Walnut streets. Although capable secretary Jim Chichester hasn't told me what has been arranged in the way of entertainment I'm certain it will be very worthwhile. All members are urged to be on hand, and all interested non-member sportsmen have a cordial invitation to attend. The meeting will start at eight p. m.

Fishing . . . from Captain George Clover, Beach Haven Terrace party boat skipper, comes this note: ". . . sea bass are running rather good in the bay, and also large school weaks. Good catches came in on the week-end."

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (INS)—The Institute for School Bus Drivers initiated by the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque has since been adopted by 29 other states. The unique training course was started by Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Martin to help make school buses safer for children. Topics covered include driver qualifications, sound driver practices, maintenance of equipment, driver responsibilities, bus sanitation, routes and reports.

BUNNIES TO PLAY CONSHOHOCKEN HERE TOMORROW

Still seeking its first win of the season, the Bristol High Bunnies will battle Conshohocken High tomorrow afternoon on the local gridiron. Opening kickoff is scheduled for 2:15 o'clock.

It will mark the first home game of the season for the Bunnies who have lost to Bordentown Manual, Trenton Catholic, and Pottstown. In the three games, the locals have scored but one touchdown and lost that game—Trenton Catholic—by one point, 7-6.

Coach Harry McClister has tried several changes in the line-up to produce some offensive punch. On several occasions, the "Bunnies" neared the goal-line of their opponents but lacked the necessary drive to score touchdowns.

LEPER ASYLUM

RIBERLTA, Bovilla (INS)—A new Catholic leper asylum has taken shape in the Bolivian jungle where the lepers may worship in their own little chapel, thanks to Father John Gallagher, a Maryknoll priest from Oakland, California. The idea had its start during one of Father Gallagher's mission trips. He visited the settlement of Agua Dulce and found the outcasts living unattended in poverty and misery. He organized the small colony and built a chapel and dispensary.

BENSLEM TO MEET P. S. D. ELEVEN AT HOME

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 10—An improved Benslem Township team will take the field against the Pennsylvania School for Deaf tomorrow afternoon, starting at two o'clock. The game will be played at Mt. Airy.

Coach "Woody" Wetherhold was satisfied with the showing of his proteges against Newtown and feels confident that his boys will come up with their initial win tomorrow.

The victoryless Benslem team held three practice sessions this week and showed a vast improvement since their opening fracas against Germantown Friends. Their only weakness thus far is inability to gain much yardage on their end sweeps, the plays which carried them to six victories last season.

said college shall equip skilled men for service upon the various warships of the United States Navy in case of there being necessity for their service in such capacity.

It also makes the extraordinary request that "permission be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Navy to make use of Government vessels, so that there shall be from time to time a trial and test of skill and ability of such pupils in a practical way."

Another provision is for a full band of music and drum corps.

McKee, who was a Colonel of the 13th Regiment National Guards of Pennsylvania and lived at 1030 Lombard street, Philadelphia, was a native of Alexandria, Va., and came to Philadelphia a poor boy, Dr. Minton, a graduate of Jefferson Medical College, once explained.

It is now up to the court to decide whether the college is practical within the meaning of the law and intent of the testator before funds can be used for that purpose.

ARTHRITIC TREATMENT

LONDON—(INS)—By transfusing the blood of pregnant women into sufferers, seemingly hopeless cases of rheumatoid arthritis, in which scientific treatment had yielded no results, have been cured according to Dr. Imre Barsi. Writing in the "British Medical Journal," Dr. Barsi who was formerly head physician of the Rheumatism Sanatorium in Budapest, Hungary, says that of 28 "seemingly hopeless" patients he treated in this manner, 64 per cent recovered or improved. Thirty-six per cent remained unchanged.
